Deep within time lies a remarkable story...

The history of porcelain tableware is a story of ancient mysteries, exquisite craftsmanship, and worldwide fascination.

It begins in ancient China. Legend has it that during the Tang dynasty (618–907 AD), alchemists stumbled upon an extraordinary formula while searching for the elixir of immortality. Instead of eternal life, they discovered something timeless - a new type of clay, delicate and white, called kaolin, which became the very heart and soul of porcelain.

It found its way into the hands of master craftsmen who perfected their art, keeping their production secrets closely guarded. Later, Chinese artisans reached new levels of mastery by decorating porcelain with intricate, legendary designs.

As porcelain traveled along the Silk Road, it became a highly coveted symbol of sophistication and luxury. In Europe, it was called "white gold," and countless attempts were made to uncover its secret recipe.

At the beginning of the 18th century, German scientists Johann Friedrich Böttger and Ehrenfried Walther von Tschirnhaus finally succeeded. Their groundbreaking discovery led to the founding of the Meissen porcelain manufactory in 1710, marking the beginning of European porcelain production.

Today, porcelain tableware remains a hallmark of refinement and elegance. Its enduring charm lies not only in its visual appeal but also in its practicality. Its strength, resistance to chipping and staining, and tolerance for high temperatures make it the perfect canvas for culinary artistry. When setting a table adorned with porcelain, know that you are arranging more than plates and bowls - you are laying out a piece of history, a legacy of craftsmanship and creativity that has captivated the world for over a thousand years.

"Every delicate brushstroke and intricate detail gives porcelain beauty and uniqueness. Just as no two hand-painted vessels are identical, even when painted in the same style, no two lives are the same, though they may sometimes appear similar overall. True greatness is found in individuality and imperfections. Embrace the cracks and colors of your journey, for it is in the nuances that the masterpiece of your life truly shines."

ROSENTHAL TEAPOT

The porcelain teapot was designed by Walter Gropius, one of the most influential architects of the 20th century and founder of the Bauhaus School. In 1946, he opened The Architects Collaborative, creating numerous extraordinary projects still admired today. For Rosenthal, Gropius designed the "Rosenthal am Rotbühl" factory and, in 1962, at the request of Philip Rosenthal, created the TAC porcelain tea set, an icon of Bauhaus design. The presented teapot is part of this collection. Gropius approached functional objects like architecture, combining basic geometric forms without ornamentation, with aesthetics justified by function.

This teapot is a striking piece, merging functionality with aesthetic simplicity. Its geometric inspiration comes from the form of a sphere. The handle's sharp angles are softened with rounded edges. Even decades after its creation, it continues to evoke emotion. Adorned with our unique, hand-painted ABBela pattern, it becomes a striking table centerpiece and a cherished heirloom.

ADDITIONAL PIECES

In the 18th century, the combination of French creativity from Jean François Boch and German precision from Nicolas Villeroy gave rise to the globally renowned porcelain brand Villeroy & Boch. For over two centuries, in the small German town of Mettlach, the character of these two founders—who prioritized quality from the very beginning—remains evident. Initially, the location housed only the Villeroy & Boch headquarters, later including a factory, now the largest in Europe.

All products are made from premium or bone porcelain, the most noble form of this material. As the company developed, ever more advanced and modern solutions revolutionized porcelain production, with a strong focus on natural resource conservation. Years of experience have made Villeroy & Boch renowned for the highest quality, impeccable design, and enduring style.

HOW TO CARE FOR HAND-PAINTED PORCELAIN

Hand-painted porcelain is more than just a functional item, it is a true work of art. To ensure that it delights the eye for years to come with its unique brilliance and decoration, it deserves a little extra care. Here are some essential tips to preserve the exceptional character and durability of ABBela porcelain.

Hand washing

ABBela's hand-painted porcelain should always be washed by hand. Avoid placing too many pieces in water at once to prevent chipping or scratching. Do not use harsh detergents or abrasive cloths, which can damage glazed decorations, especially those featuring gold, platinum, or mirror-like finishes.

Avoid dishwashers

Do not wash our hand-painted porcelain in mechanical dishwashers, as this may damage the design.

Protect the patterns

Avoid cutting directly on hand-painted surfaces with sharp tools. While the porcelain itself is strong and safe for everyday use, the decorations are delicate works of art. Our designs are carefully created so that meals can be enjoyed without touching the patterned areas with knives.

Avoid microwaves

Hand-painted items, particularly those with gold or platinum, are not microwave-safe.

Oven use

Our porcelain can be used in the oven. However, never expose it to sudden temperature changes. Porcelain subjected to thermal shock – regardless of its heat resistance – may be damaged. Avoid direct contact with open flames.

Refrigerator and freezer use

Porcelain can safely go into the refrigerator or freezer. After removing it, do not place it directly into a preheated oven, as thermal shock may occur.

THANK YOU

We are delighted that the porcelain painted by us is part of so many memorable as well as everyday moments.

Let's celebrate daily life together in beautiful style.
